INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH COLLOQUIUM

DIVERSITY CONSCIOUS LEARNING IN SCHOOL CONTEXTS

Our colloquium is addressing questions in the context of learning, considering diversity and equality. For this purpose, diverse research approaches and perspectives from different fields of research, such as school pedagogics, didactics, special needs education and education research, will be discussed. Our aim is an interdisciplinary exchange as well as international networking of researchers working on different research questions and topics. The intention is to benefit from a wide thematic diversity and different methodological approaches of the participants. Joint interpretations, the networking of research approaches as well as the development of innovative ideas are planned.

Core Interests?

- Joint interpretations, networking of research approaches as well as the development of innovative ideas are planned.
- Collaboration in the colloquium should take place on a friendly and open level of discussion. The guiding principle is: We benefit from different experiences and perspectives.

Target Group?

- Interested participants from all connected subject areas are welcome (e. g. school pedagogy, didactics, special needs education, education research, ...).
- Our colloquium is especially happy to welcome young researchers who are interested in discussing their current research work on an internation .
- Our colloquium mainly addresses researchers who conduct qualitative research, but is also open to mixed methods analysis.

Mode of operation?

- Regular online meetings are planned for the interpretation of research data or for the discussion of key topics (approx. every 8 weeks).
- Annual meetings are planned to deepen previous research work and to intensify international networking.

How can I participate?

- If you are interested in participating, contact Dr. Mia Viermann. Please also do not hesitate to get in touch with any questions.
